Learning Outcomes

- Focus on speedy execution – results matter so create pilot programs that get fast results, even small steps
- Look for “boundary-spanning” opportunities – being innovative about how people/organizations in a community collaborate, that will drive meaningful results
- Start by improving existing processes, but look for opportunities that can transform the way care is delivered
- Tailor mobile technology so that it provides education, support and monitoring of progress
- Validation matters. Work with the system to get buy-in and outside the system to accelerate development and learnings
